Ken currently serves as Director, Operating and Capital Budgeting at Case Western Reserve. He was previously the Assistant to the CFO at Northern Illinois University where he assisted in debt management, auxiliary accounting and budgeting, and other strategic finance research initiatives, external financial reporting as well as various process improvement and other projects. Ken Wilson, a CPA with over 20 years of accounting and finance experience, joined the University of Michigan as division controller. Ken was also Controller at the University of Wisconsin-La Crosse. Prior to that, he served as associate comptroller at Purdue University, where he had direct responsibility for external financial reporting, including the annual financial statement audit, as well as a variety of cost reimbursement activities such as effort reporting, recharge rate establishment and the development and negotiation of the federal facilities and administrative rate proposal.

A nationally recognized leader in shaping higher education accounting principles, Ken served as chairperson of NACUBO's Accounting Principles Council. He was a member of the Governmental Accounting Standards Board Implementation Guide Committee and a past member of the COGR committee that developed interpretations and guidance for higher education research institutions in response to the Best Practices Manual For Reviewing College and University Long-Form Facilities & Administrative Cost Rate Proposals, released by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services' Division of Cost Allocation. Ken has participated on various NACUBO initiatives, given presentations to ACUA and other groups.

Ken has extensive higher education finance experience, including the areas of treasury and debt management, PCI compliance, accounts payable and travel, investments, and student financial services.
