

Guy Chipparoni

President & CEO / LLC Member

Guy Chipparoni is one of the industry's foremost experts in strategic planning, media relations, and crisis communications. His counsel to senior executives across a wide array of industries highlights his extraordinary abilities to quickly assess and respond to challenging situations.

Guy founded Res Publica Group in 2002. Today, it is one of the most highly-regarded communication agencies in the Midwest, and is noted for its team of professionals with corporate, government, and frontline media experience.

Previously, Guy served as president of the public affairs group of KemperLesnik Communications in Chicago, and as senior managing director of public affairs at Hill & Knowlton. He currently serves on the Chicago Advisory Board of U. S. Bank, and was named by Crain's as one of "The Power 50" -- the 50 most influential people in Chicago.

Guy likes: A client who knows we're going to bust our butt for them, A client who recognizes we care as much about their issues as they do, A client who doesn't whine.
