

Third, when you wonder where my animosity comes from or why I am on the war path....for those of you that remember "Newton's Laws", that in and of itself explains it. You stuck a rod up my a-s last year and I took it like a man and now I am going to make sure we get it right this year for the community. You will not like my tactics or methodologies but I don't like yours either and quite frankly have no respect for a good portion of you with substantial reasoning. This isn't about like or not like, you can come back from that but when you lose respect, it's game over.

We are still working to find out the cat fishing incident culprit, I personally think it is affiliated with one of you.

You can come at me with all the barbs you want at this point, I am ready for you. I have a lot of fight in me for these children and I will never give up because they deserve that.
